

LEED AP EXAM PREP COURSE

Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design - Accredited Professional

WARNING!! If you don't register for the LEED AP exam before March 31, 2009, you will need to demonstrate actual LEED experience in the future.

ABOUT THE SCHOOL.....

Contractors Exam School has been providing exam preparation courses in the construction trades since 1971.

WHY BECOME A LEED PROFESSIONAL.....

LEED AP credentials are being required on many projects, especially school district jobs. The Governor of Florida has mandated all new state buildings must follow the LEED process. The incoming presidential administration is looking at investing billions of dollars in green energy, energy conservation, etc. Do not miss out on all of these opportunities. However, the primary reason is to increase your profits. Advertising your credentials and your ability to build structures that are energy efficient is a tremendous selling point.

ABOUT THE INSTRUCTOR.....

Paul Wingard, P.E., LEED AP, is the chief instructor for C.E.S. with 14 years exam preparation teaching experience. Paul is a registered PROFESSIONAL ENGINEER in Florida, Georgia, Maryland and New York. Paul is a - LEED Accredited Professional & holds Contractor Licenses for Florida General Contractor, Roofing Contractor, Underground Utility Contractor & has passed the exams for State Pool Contractor, Building Contractor, Specialty Contractor & County Aluminum.

ABOUT THE LEED AP EXAM PREP COURSE.....

Our class is geared toward construction professionals that have minimal knowledge in the LEED construction process. It is aimed directly at assuring you can pass the exam. Unlike many of the classes put on by various architectural firms, engineering firms and universities, we are not pitching the LEED process, or going to tell you how to build structures accordingly. We are going to get you through the exam. Take a class with our construction professional, like yourself, and not a room full of engineers and architects.
